Friday C2 - Championship - April 28, 2006

Blades Cut Down Dirty Dozen in Penalty-Filled Final

Lewis Center, OH - I always hated the joke "I went to a fight and a hockey game broke out." As a fan of hockey, I've always thought that saying reinforces the perceptions of those who overlook the skill and athleticism involved in our game. They see the physicality of hockey and assume it's nothing more than a "brawl on ice."

Friday night, that saying continued to pop into my head during the penalty-filled Friday Championship game between the Dirty Dozen and the Blades. Although that may be a little unfair – there was only one fight and a player from each team was ejected as a result. However it was the addition of 15 other penalties totaling 36 minutes that caused me to wonder if I would get to see any hockey at all that night. Another fan nearby made the same comment so I knew it wasn't my perception alone.

Penalties aside, there wasn't too much else to report. The Dirty 12 were favored as the top seed facing the fourth seed. But the Blades had been tested at every step of the postseason and were battle hardened by now. It was expected to be a close game.

And it was. Throughout the first period, goaltenders King Wong of the Dozen and Brian Prescott of the Blades were solid as usual. Teams don't get this far without solid goaltending. Beyond that there wasn't much offense to speak of and the period ended with nothing but donuts on the scoreboard.

Period two was more of the same until a late goal by Chris Finneran of the Blades. Dan Rott got the assist. That was it at the break.

The final period was hotly contested with little action on the scoreboard but lots of action on the ice. Whistles were blowing as the bulk of the penalties and the aforementioned brouhaha all took place in the third period. The Blades struck again when Kevin Broyer scored at the five-minute mark to put them up by two. That was it as Prescott secured the shutout and the Blades were crowned champions.

Congratulations to all the Friday teams and we'll see you next session!
